

Inclusive and Resilient Health Systems

Dr. Carlos Primero D. Gundran

*Department of Health Policies and Administration,
College of Public Health,
University of the Philippines Manila /
SEAMEO TROPMED Philippines,
Regional Center for Public Health, Hospital Administration, Environmental & Occupational Health*

To understand how to improve the Health System of the country, we need to understand the framework from which the Health System is anchored to. Knowing these building blocks in itself may be the first step in resilient health systems, knowledge itself is not enough if there is no action or implementation following it. The implementation part needs the support of each and every one of us. Let us learn this health system building blocks to identify the gaps needing the nation's actions to help make the Philippines have a more resilient Health Systems in the future.